

ROUMANIA'S ACTION MAY TERMINATE WAR

DECLARATION OF WAR MAY CAUSE THE INTERVENTION OF THE POWERS.

TAKE BULGARIAN CITY

Object of Invasion Strengthening of Claim to Participate in Division of Territory.

London, July 11.—The Roumanian declaration of war on Bulgaria is expected here to assist in bringing to an end the carnage in the Balkans by forcing speedy action on the part of the powers who have been invited to intervene.

Wants Territory.
The object of King Charles of Roumania in assuming the part of a belligerent is to strengthen Rouma-nia's claim to participate in the ultimate sharing of territory in the Balkan peninsula.

Occupies Territory.
For the present Roumania, it is thought, will probably content herself with occupying the strip of Bulgarian territory from Turtukal on the Danube to Balchik on the Black sea, including the city of Silistria.

Long Coveted.
She has coveted this for a long time, and it is believed she will accomplish her purpose under the pre-valing condition without Bulgarian assistance.

Is in Silistria.
Bucharest, July 11.—Roumanian troops today occupied the Bulgarian city of Silistria on the right bank of the Danube. They were not opposed by the Bulgarians.

Roumania Active.
Bucharest, Roumania, July 11.—
The Roumanian Government decided yesterday to notify the Bulgarian Government that the Roumanian
army would cross into Bulgarian territory and also that Roumania should take part in the discussion of the final partition of the territories of what was formerly European Turkey.

Are Satisfied.
Belgrade, July 11.—The Serbian
and Greek campaign against the Bulgarians in Macedonia is regarded by the Serbian military authorities as concluded since the defeat of the Bulgarians in the recent fighting. The Serbian troops joined hands this morning with the Greek forces which had just taken Strumitza.

Silistria is a very important point on the Danube and has been in existence as a city since the Roman era.
Until the conclusion of the Russian-Turkish war in 1878 it has been for about 500 years the main bulwark of the Ottoman empire on its northern European frontier. It sustained many sieges through the centuries and always offered a stout resistance.
Even as late as the Crimean war
it was able to defy a bombardment
by the Russians, but after the last Russian-Turkish war the Turkish troops retired and left it in the hands of the Bulgarians. It has over 12,000 inhabitants, many of whom are Mo-hammadians.

Hope For Peace.
St. Petersburg, July 11.—A distinctly hostile law is expressed today by the Russian press and official circles in regard to the Balkan situation. Peace is regarded generally as imminent on account of the crumbling of the Bulgarian army and the severe losses of Serbia. The Russian Red Cross society has decided not to send any detachments of doctors, nurses, and ambulance men to the front.

Protest Against Action.
Paris, July 11.—The Bulgarian legation here has received instructions from Sofia to protest as energetically
as possible to the French government against the unjustifiable prolonging of Roumania in invading Bulgarian territory.

Greek Troops Win Victory.
London, Eng., July 11.—Greek troops today occupied Demir-Hissar, thirteen miles northwest of Serres,
after a brilliant victory over the Bulgarians, who have been in possession since they won it from the Turks in the recent war according to an Exchange of Telegrams company's dispatch. The Bulgarians abandoned their field guns, ammunition and provisions. A telegram to the same agency from Constantinople says it is announced by the newspapers that Adia, the town on the Black sea which was to form the eastern end of the future frontier line between Bulgaria and Turkey, is in flames.

Armistice in Existence.
Vienna, July 11.—A dispatch from Belgrade reports that an order for the cessation of hostilities between the various armies in the Balkans is expected immediately. It says that a tacit armistice has been in existence at most points since yesterday.

Roumanian Minister Leaves.
Sofia, July 11.—The Roumanian minister to Bulgaria left his post today after notifying the Bulgarian Government that the Roumanian army had crossed the Bulgarian frontier.
Bulgaria had decided not to resist
the invasion of the troops of her northern neighbor although she considers it an unprecedented provocation.

CAUGHT WAITING FOR TRAIN

La Crosse, July 11.—Because he caught cold as the result of missing
a train at Walker, Minn., where he had been a patient in a tuberculosis sanatorium, Henry Kindhammer vesterday received a check for $300 from the Minnesota and International, a branch of the Northern Pacific.

NEENAH MAN SEEKS
HOTEL IN LINE CITY

Neenah, July 11.—W. P. Kasson of this city has secured an option on the Grand and Beloit, which will probably be exercised within the next few days. Kasson was recently refused a license by the city council here.

Royal Visit to Liverpool.
Liverpool, July 11.—The king and queen were heartily received upon their arrival in Liverpool today for a three days' visit. Following an address of welcome in St. George's Hall this morning their majesties were the guests of the lord mayor at a luncheon given in the town hall. Tomorrow the king will officiate at the formal opening of the Christchurch dock.

TWO MURDER CASES ALMOST IDENTICAL

Believe That Same Men Killed Pendell of Los Angeles and Joseph Logue of Chicago.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—More than two weeks have passed since Charles E. Pendell, a wealthy money lender, was found murdered in his office in this city, and the case remains as much a mystery as it was on the day the mutilated body was discovered. Of one thing, however,
the police are thoroughly convinced.
They believe that when the person or persons who killed Pendell are found,
then the long-sought murderers of Joseph Logue in Chicago will be found.
Seldom have two crimes committed at points so far apart offered such a case of similarity in every important detail. That the two murders were committed by the same hand appears certain to those who have studied the two cases.

The murder of Joseph H. Logue occurred in Chicago on December 20 last. Logue was a money lender as was Pendell, the Los Angeles victim.
Both also dealt in diamonds and jewelry. Both murders were committed in the offices of the victims. Both were committed in the middle of the day, Logue being killed at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. In each case the last person seen to enter the office was a well-dressed woman. Robbery is supposed to have furnished the motive in each case, though strangely enough the nature and amount of the booty taken have never been determined. In the Logue case the woman definitely either in the Logue or the Pendell case. Both victims were known to be in the habit of carrying considerable sums of money and large amounts of jewelry. The brutality of the murder was evidenced in each case, both of the victims being shot, slashed and beaten.

The detectives are positive that the two murders were committed by the same person or persons. In neither case did there appear the slightest clue that might lead to the identity of the pair. The murderer or murderers committed their crimes so skillfully and so quietly that persons in adjoining offices heard no sound.

NEW LAW CONTESTED BY NEENAH OFFICERS

Bill Providing for Appointment of Fire and Policemen Causes Trouble at Neenah, Wisconsin.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Neenah, Wis., July 11.—The opinion of city officials here in regard to the effect of Chapter 593, Laws of 1913,
and that the same creates a complicated melange of the fire and police laws affecting all cities of the fourth class in the state, seems to be borne out by the opinion from the review of statutes at Madison. The reviewer states that the bill as originally devised was intended to affect only cities having a population of 4,000 or less, but it was inconspicuously amended so as to deprive it of the desired effect, and as passed involves an ambiguity and doubt. The city attorney made police and fire appointments and have them confirmed by the police and fire commission.

WANT BETTER RAILWAY RATES THROUGH SOUTH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Pensacola, Fla., July 11.—A proposal to divert the shipments of cotton seed and its products throughout the whole of Alabama from the railroads to the water routes was discussed here today at the opening session of the ninth annual convention of the Alabama Cotton Seed Crushers' Association. The sentiment of the convention was that what would be advisable to select the water route for the movement of the business this year unless satisfactory rates and regulations were announced by the railroads before the crop began to move.

FEDERATION OF LABOR FOR ALBERTA CONVENES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Medicine Hat, Alta., July 11.—The first annual convention of the Alberta Federation of Labor was called to order in this city at 10 o'clock this morning by President J. C. Jones of Calgary. The roll call by Secretary L.
English showed a large and representative attendance.

A wide variety of topics of importance to the labor organizations and the working classes in general are to be considered during the several days
that the convention will be in session.
Among the matters that will receive attention are the minimum wage and universal eight-hour laws, co-operation of farmers and wage-earners, the protection of work shops, the importation of foreign labor, the repeal of amendment of the present compensation law and the protection of woman and child labor.

STORM SWEEPS OVER ITALY; CROPS RUINED

Country Suffers Heavy Losses as Devastation Follows Storm—Temperature Drops.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, Italy, July 11.—A terrific storm is raging throughout Italy and in many places the country has been devastated and the crops destroyed. It is accompanied by remarkably cold weather for the time of year. The temperature in Rome at noon today fell below 60 degrees Fahrenheit.
Such weather in the middle of July has not been recorded in Italy since the year 1313 when superstitious people attributed it to the number 13.

At Naples. July 11.—Extraordinary falls of rain and hail have flooded the surrounding country for the last two days. Torrents of water mixed with mud and ashes from Vesuvius have inundated the villages along the gulf of Naples. Owing to a strong cold wind from the north accompanied by hurricanes the temperature today fell almost to freezing point. Snow is reported to have fallen in the Alps.

At Cosenza. July 11.—Hurricanes accompanied by sleet and severe shocks and underground rumblings have terrified the peasants in this region for the past two days. This is especially the case in the isolated villages where the people have not recovered from a earthquake which occurred at the end of June.

Messina, Italy, July 11.—A violent tempest in the vicinity of the Straits of Messina accompanied by heavy rainfall is causing enormous damage in this region. Crops have been destroyed and floods have compelled the population to leave the huts in which they have been living since the great earthquake a few years ago.

NEGRO IS CONVICTED WHITE SLAVE CHARGE

George Thompson Found Guilty of Taking Fifteen-Year-Old Girl
From Home.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, July 11.—Convicted today on all counts in the "white slavery indictment" against him, George Thompson, the negro who took a 15-year-old white girl from her home to marry her, faces a long imprisonment and a heavy fine. A motion for a new trial will be heard on July 24. Thompson is 44 years old. He claimed that he had taken the girl to Niles for the purpose of marrying her, but his suggestion. The maximum punishment on each indictment is five years imprisonment, a $10,000 fine or both.

BERGMAN IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF SYNOD

Named As Head of Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod—Church Union Opposed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Appleton, Wis., July 11.—Rev. Bergman of Fond du Lac was today elected president of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran synod. Rev. Alfred H. Gieschen of Milwaukee was elected secretary; H. Knuth Milwaukee was elected general treasurer,
and Rev. Theodore G. Oshkosh, synodical treasurer. The proposed plan to consolidate the Wisconsin synod with the Wisconsin district of the Missouri synod will not be recommended by the committee to whom it was referred. A paper this morning read by Rev. Haenich recommended that more of the writings of the synod be done in English.
A resolution was adopted to further his views.

CITY SCHOOL CENSUS IS NOW BEING TAKEN

Clerk S. C. Burnham at Work on East Side of the River—Reports
From Country Districts.

Clerk S. C. Burnham of the Board of Education is at present engaged in taking the census of children in the school age in the city of Janesville, which, according to statute, are those from four to twenty years old. In accordance with the ruling enforced
for the first time last year, the clerk is obliged to record the exact birthday and birth-year of each child.
This made the work of census-taking last year much more laborious but it will cause less difficulty this year because only a comparatively small number of birth dates will have to be learned. Thus far Mr. Burnham has confined his work to the east side of the river. He anticipates that it will take him about five weeks to complete the census.

Annual reports from the rural and village school districts of the county are due at the office of Superintendent of Schools O. D. Antisdal by July 25. These reports must include the school census and financial report of the district for the year. Reports have been received (thus far) from Joint District No. 1, Porter and Center townships, District No. 2,
Magnolia, No. 3, Spring Valley, No. 4,
Porter and Dunkirk. Superintendent
Antisdal desires to caution the officials taking the census that they must not date birthdays ahead; note those occurring after June 30.

ALABAMA BAR ASSOCIATION TO WAR ON SHYSTER LAWYERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Mobile, Ala., July 11.—Shyster lawyers and others of the legal profession who resort to sharp practices are going to be run out of Alabama,
if the combined effort of the members of the Alabama State Bar Association can accomplish that end. The subject was exhaustively discussed at the opening here today of the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the association.
Following an address by Frank S.
Waite of Birmingham, president of the association, other members pointed out the dangers that come to the people and to the reputable members of the profession through the operations of unscrupulous lawyers. Publicity is to be given the fight which the association will fight with which is described as an increasing menace.

HONESTY IN DEALING FAVORED AT DULUTH

Speakers at Convention Favor Honesty in Transacting Business—Plan to Fight Mail Houses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Duluth, Minn., July 11.—A better feeling between wholesale and retail dealers, elimination of the practice of shoddy weighing in coal transactions, honest advertising and feeling in favor of a reciprocal demur-age law, are some of the reforms brought about by the Northwestern Retail Coal Dealers' association, according to President W. B. Brouning of Union, Nebraska, who spoke at the 13th annual convention here today.
H. L. Laird of Minneapolis, secretary of the association, said that the organization has spared education among small dealers.

"God help us when the mail order houses have driven out the small dealer or any other merchant in small towns," he said.

"During the last ten years six thousand towns have decreased in population. This should never have occurred. Patronize home industry."

HOUSE OF COMMONS DISTURBED BY WOMEN

English Suffragettes Shoot Pistol in English Parliament Today, Causing Panic in House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, July 11.—The report of a pistol fired from the stranger's gallery in the house of commons today accompanied by a yell of "Justice for Women" caused panic among the members in session.

Simultaneously with the report a shower of pamphlets rained down on the members. They bore the printed words "votes for women."

Two persons pointed out as purposors of the outrage were taken from the gallery and detained pending investigation. It was discovered later that the weapon was merely a toy pistol. A number of toy mouse traps satirizing the "cat and mouse"
game had been thrown from the gallery.

cession.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Liverpool, Eng., July 11.—Militant suffragettes started a window smashing demonstration during King George's visit here today. Armed with pokers squads of women shattered several large windows along the route of the procession, but the police quickly rounded them up and ordered them restored before his majesty's arrival.

factory is the progress made by Wil-

LA CROSSE BILLIARD HALLS ARE IN DIFFICULTIES

La Crosse, July 11.—Owners of billiard halls here will have to close at midnight if an ordinance now before the council passes. They have been warned to submit "kelly pool," a gambling game, to be played with license is being held up until satisfactory assurances are made that the place will be properly conducted.

Straight Talk To the Retailer

It is safe to say that almost every progressive retailer in the community will concede the compelling influence of the newspaper and its advertising value as a permanent and helpful business builder.

Merchants have learned by actual experience that the quickest, most convincing and most profitable way to tell their advertising news to their patrons and patrons-to-be is through the columns of the best newspapers.

The results obtainable from newspaper advertising are so well understood and recognized that the retail merchant now expects and demands of the manufacturer whose special brands of merchandise he sells, co-operation, assistance and arrangements for advertising the manufacturer's merchandise.

The manufacturer gladly listens to the up-and-doing retailer who can present a clear-cut advertising plan that will sell more goods for both himself and the manufacturer.

Local dealers and manufacturers interested in daily newspaper advertising for nationally distributed products are invited to write to the BUREAU OF ADVERTISING, AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION, World Building, New York.

NOT A CRIME TO SIT IN SALOON SUNDAYS

Attorney General Owen Holds That Law Only Contemplates Forbidding Traffic in Business.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 11.—It is no crime to sit around a saloon on Sunday provided nothing is sold. An opinion by Attorney General Owen to District Attorney James Kirwan of Calumet county makes this clear.
Application had been made to Kirwan to arrest saloon-keepers who keep open their places of business on Sunday. No business was done except people sit in the saloon out of the sun. The attorney general holds an offense has not been committed and that the law contemplates forbidding traffic or business in places that are kept open on the first day of the week.

Numerous other questions involving the Sunday law are also asked and answered. The attorney general rules that unless the operation of a saloon is for the purpose of necessity, the owners are open to prosecution, and the burden of proof
would be upon the defendant to show
it was a work of necessity. Saloon-keepers of Chilton made application for the arrest of the mayor of a canning factory for running on Sunday.

The attorney general holds that keeping a cheese factory open for business on Sunday is not a work of necessity, nor is the sale of wearing apparel.

"I believe the presumption would be," he says, "that keeping open any place of business on Sunday, except certain lines of business where the necessity is clear, would be presumed to be in violation of the law.
Generally speaking, I do not believe that the selling of meat and certain perishable kinds of groceries on Sunday would be considered a work of necessity. Most people are provided with ice nowadays. * * * In my opinion the sale of bread is not a work of necessity."

CHURCHES ONLY FOR RICH IS HIS CLAIM

Dr. J. A. McDonald Makes Startling
Statements at Christian Endeavor Society's Convention.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Los Angeles, July 11.—"From my point of view as a newspaper man,
the churches of America alike in the past, present and future have in the past been in danger of losing their national outlook and becoming mere denominations of the intellectual and well-to-do."

This was the assertion of Dr. J. A.
McDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe and one of the Canadian delegates to the Christian Endeavor society convention here, in his address delivered here on the problem of capital and labor as related to the churches.

"Over America," said Dr. McDonald, "there has grown up an industrial absolutism more baneful and much more arrogant than that of any State in the world. It is the church of John Knox that will stand against tyranny and oppression for the will of God and the rights of men."

the two were separated. Davis learned

KENTUCKY TOBACCO TRUST SEIZES TOWNS

Many Prosperous Towns in Tobacco

by Imperial Tobacco Company.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., July 11.—The Imperial Tobacco Company the so-called tobacco trust in Kentucky has pauperized hitherto prosperous towns in the tobacco belt according to testimony of A. B. Jarvis, today before the congressional tobacco commission.
Jarvis is an independent at Henderson, Kentucky.

Not only were growers at the mercy of the "trust" he declared, but what few factories were going had been reaped by the trust at its own prices.

cian arrived.

Brick Couldn't Feaze Him.
A negro stopped a brick at Washington the other day, after it had fallen ten stories and was traveling with the velocity of a cannon ball. When the brick hit William Moore, the negro, on the top of the head, the brick broke into bits. Moore sat down suddenly and apparently was a subject for the coroner. Workmen sent hurriedly for a physician, but before he arrived Moore sat up. "What d'ye want to do that for?" he demanded angrily of a workman. Examination of Moore revealed that all he suffered was a headache.

ODD FELLOW LODGES PLAN JOINT PICNIC

Janesville Lodges No. 14 and 90, I. O. O. F., to Have Outing at Yost Park, July 23.

Janesville Lodges No. 14 and 90, Rebekah Lodges No. 26 and 171 will hold a joint picnic at Yost Park on Wednesday, July 23, which all Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and their invited friends within the district are invited to attend. Those who come are expected to bring basket lunches. The committee on entertainment is drawing up a program of games and contests, including baseball, for which prizes will be offered. A ball game will be played between a team representing the two Janesville Odd Fellows lodges and another between teams representing Beloit and Janesville lodges. As some of the best baseball players in both cities are enrolled in the order the game promises to be superior to the usual informal amateur game and delight the most hardened fan. In the evening there will be music and dancing. Special cars will be run on the Northern railway to accommodate the picnickers. The round trip fare from Janesville will be twenty-five cents.

AWARD COAL CONTRACT TO SUPPLY CITY COAL

W. J. Baker was awarded the contract to supply the city with 135 tons of coal by the council at its meeting yesterday afternoon. The vote on the bridge bond issue was carried, the municipal court report for June was received and ordered placed on file, and John Dalton was appointed a special police officer for three months. No other business came before the meeting.

USE NEW RECORD FORMS AT THE POLICE STATION

For the purpose of keeping a more complete record of prisoners, Chief of Police E. H. Ransom has had printed and put to use envelopes in which the officers are expected to give the name of the prisoner, date of arrest, quantity of money on his person, character of watch if any, the charge against the prisoner, and remarks concerning the same. He has also provided the department with description blanks on which is to be recorded the name, alias, nationality, age, weight, build, residence, description of person and clothing, place where wanted, and arrest, against any person whose arrest is sought outside the city.

Russia Bans the Poppy.

Russia's department of agriculture has prepared a law prohibiting the culture of the poppy in the trans-Baikal, Amur and Maritime provinces. The cultivation of the plant is to be a criminal offense, as will be also the smoking of opium or the storing or purchasing it, and the purchase of utensils for smoking opium.

What Astonished Legal Expert.

"The Declaration of Independence is a wonderful document," said the patriotic citizen. "Yes," replied the legal expert. "It's one of the ablest documents I ever saw. And the most remarkable thing is that with all the ability it represents, nobody appears to have received a cent for drawing it up."

PLAYGROUNDS ARE INTERESTING LARGE NUMBER IN CITY

Instructors Finley and Law Are Well Pleased With Success of New Resorts.—Five Hundred Present Yesterday.

Yesterday's attendance at the two Janesville playgrounds showed a remarkable increase over any previous count for a whole day since their inception. The Webster grounds are thronged with children of all ages from morning until night. Yesterday's register numbered 258 people, young and old, who visited the grounds at some time during the day and took part in some of the exercises, either on the swings or at some other amusement. Mr. Law, who has charge of the Webster resort, has been exceedingly busy for the past week, and especially yesterday. Those who attend his grounds are mostly children, ranging from four to twenty. Mr. Law extends a special invitation to the business men and working class to visit his grounds and make use of the apparatus.

A baseball league is being formed at the Webster grounds, and already two teams have been started. The names and members of the teams will be announced later. Yesterday an interesting baseball game took place, the Cubs defeating the Giants in a batting bee, the score being 22 to 15. It is interesting to note that each morning before the grounds are opened for thirty to fifty children are anxiously waiting for their instructor to arrive and open the grounds. This morning about forty at each playground were present before the time for opening.

Instructor Finley of the Jefferson school has some important announcements to make. He has formed a volleyball league consisting of four teams, and games will begin in a few days in earnest. Today, Mr. Finley's volleyball recruits clashed with Mr. Law's fives at the Jefferson school grounds at three o'clock. Two teams from each school were scheduled to play the first game being contested by children from the ages 12 to 14, and the second contest, ranging from 14 to 16 years old.

Following are the names of the four volleyball teams and members of each team, which is now organized at the Jefferson grounds.

Amateurs—George Brown, Capt.; Dean Kimball, E. E. Kimball, H. Flannery and Lyman Kimball.
Roughnecks—E. Taylor, Capt.; R. Scheller, H. Porter, D. McDermott and W. Korst.

Skyrockets—G. A. Gagan, Capt.; C. C. Heague, C. S. Chapin, W. R. W. Farnsworth and W. P. Farnsworth.

Copperheads—Eugene Rich, Capt.; A. Pierson, T. Nuzum, George Kavelage and M. Nowlan.

Cricket is one of the most interesting of all the games which are being played on either grounds. Volley ball is also popular especially among the business men and the older high school boys. In the evening the high school students clash with the business men at this game and some mighty close contests take place. A Cricket league will be formed next week, to go along with other leagues.

Miss Marcia Rogan has volunteered to assist Mr. Finley at the Jefferson grounds for the next two weeks. She will teach the younger girls the various games and how to play them. Individuals at both grounds have shown a wide interest in outdoor sport, and general exercise. The entire city should be interested in their children in this work, and in addition they should get out to the grounds themselves and share their portion of the many good times which might be had. The older people are turning out more each day, and it is hoped that this run will last.

SAYS EPIC MINISTER IS BELATED PRODUCT

Dr. Rowena Morse Mann.

The epic minister—the type which forsake the world and, isolated from the hurly burly of the daily life, attempted to do the thinking for men—is a belated product. The social minister commands the future. This is the sentence of Chicago's only woman minister, Dr. Rowena Morse Mann, who presides over the Third Unitarian church of that city.

Mrs. Mann's church is in the forefront of discussion of common conditions. Lectures on single tax, on socialism, on the essentials of democracy are typical of the questions concerning which the congregation busies itself.

Political announcement. Written and publication authorized by Jas. A. Fathers and paid for by him at the rate of 25c per inch per insertion.

To The Voters of Janesville

At the "recall" election to be held July 22d, 1913, and under the law governing recall elections, I become a candidate for endorsement or re-election to the office of mayor.

I desire to announce that I stand squarely on the record of my actions as Mayor for the past fifteen months.

The record of my administration of affairs has been an open book and subject to public inspection.

Our laws have been honestly and intelligently enforced to the benefit and satisfaction of the people.

I stand for and have had economy in the expenditure of public money.

Results under the Commission form of Government have been demonstrated in a practical way.

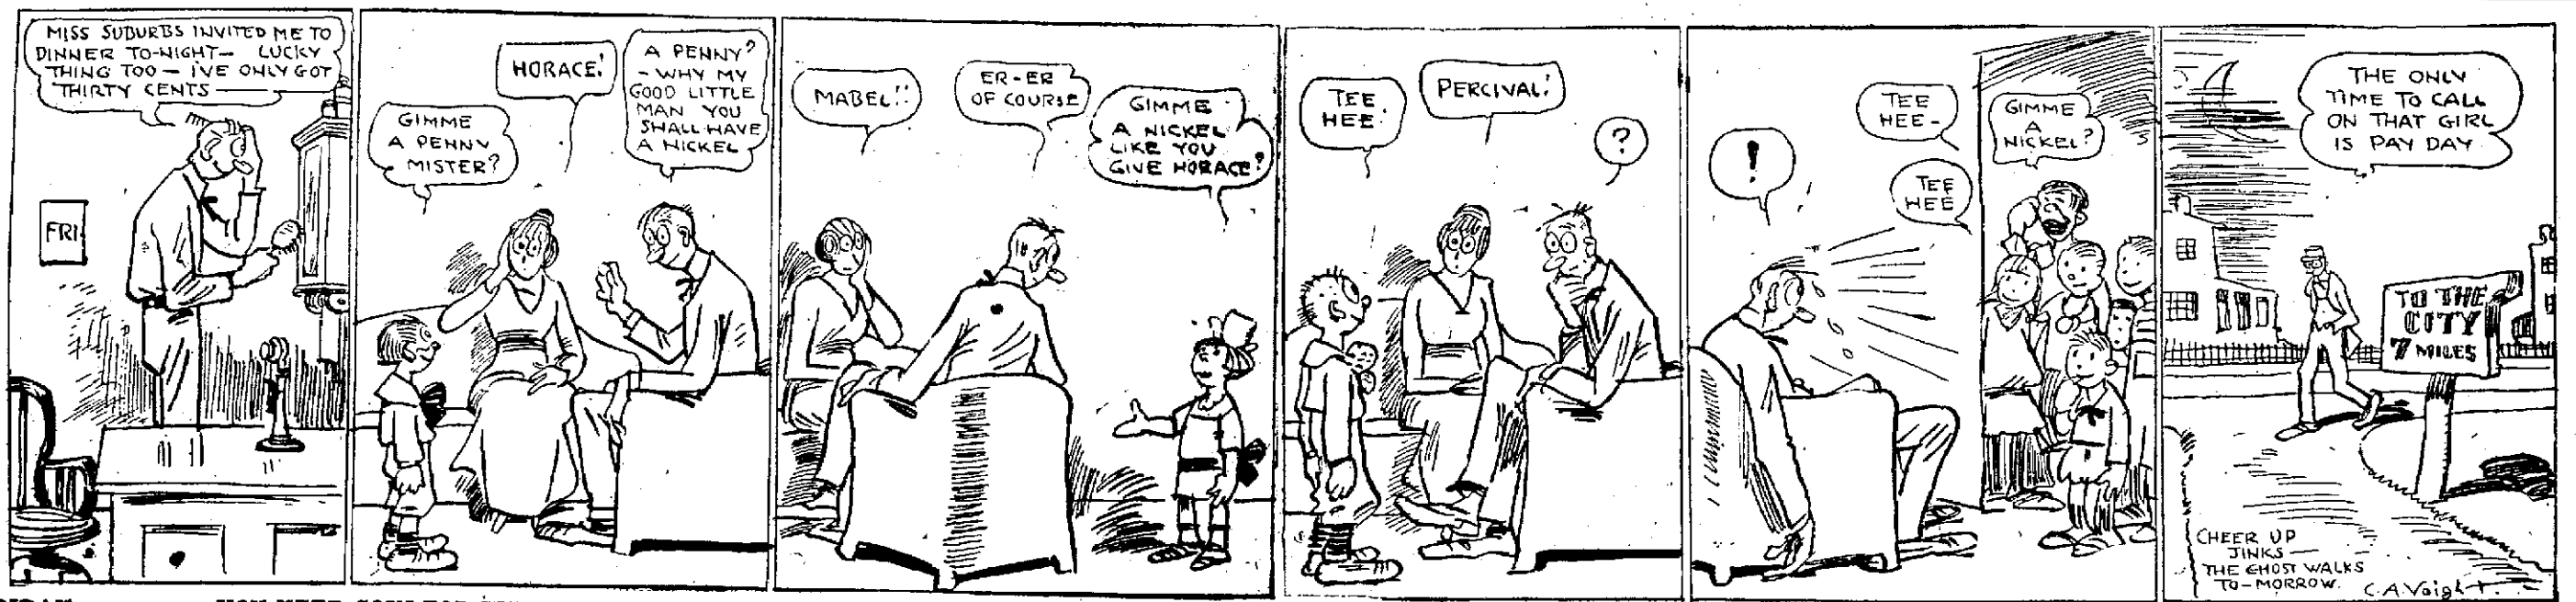

No specific charge has been presented why there should be a recall election.

Nothing, but my actions in bringing about the enforcement of law to a degree of common decency, and the further legislation in vice matters, has brought about the desire for a change of administration.

Therefore, with this brief announcement I go before the people for their endorsement of an honest endeavor to keep our city one of the cleanest and most wholesome places in which to live.

Very Respectfully,

JAS. A. FATHERS

"Occipital Blow" Hurts.
The "occipital blow" used by Gunboat Smith is not a new one. The "occipital blow," as the reader may well presume is delivered on the occiput, which is the back of the head. This blow according to W. F. Corbett, an Australian sport expert, is the same as that which in Australia is termed the "rabbit-kicker" blow, and struck with the edge of the hand. A chopping stroke it is, crude looking and appears awkwardly delivered though highly effective and generally brings about in the recipient a strong desire to lay on his back for some ten seconds and often longer. Old Bob Fitzsimmons often used it with results and it was this blow that sent the "big" Alvin, Gus Ruhlin, to the bourn from which no fighter returns viz., pugilistic oblivion. And perhaps some day Gunboat will with the "occipital" send Ruhlin a companion.

Kind Hearts at Cincinnati.
The Cincinnati Reds may never grab a pennant themselves, but they have been a great help to other teams in this respect. In fact, the Reds are winning the rep. of being the best "pennant makers" of any league. Generosity and self-sacrifice are a couple of their most lovable traits. In 1908 they helped the Giants win the pennant by giving them Mike Donlin. They gave the Cubs Overall and Steinfeldt and thus aided them in winning the pennant several years straight. By passing Paskert and Lebeck along to the Phillies they have given the latter a nice start in this season's race. And in the meanwhile the Reds hover around the second division.

FOURTH WARD STARS WILL PLAY BELOIT MOOSE

Despite the fact that their star twirler LaFere is unable to play because of an injured hand the Janesville Fourth Ward stars are fully confident of defeating the Collie Hill Eagles of Beloit at Beloit Sunday afternoon. Dolan will do the slugging duties and the locals are confident of his ability to hold the Beloiters. The Stars have had a successful

NEWARK PITCHER HAS BIG STRIKE OUT LIST

E. Carroll, Nineteen Year Old South-paw of Newark, Fans 76 Batters in 34 Innings.
The Durand Athletics defeated the Newark Giants last Sunday on the Giants' diamond in a twelve inning battle that was full of thrills. The score stood 5 to 3 from the 7th to the 12th when Durand succeeded in pushing one more run across, making it 5 to 3, and which Newark failed to tie in their half.

Medal Goes to Guthrie.
Mathewson's 58 ball record has met with grief. An amateur pitcher, Andrew Jelsma, pitching for the Elks team in the Guthrie City League of Guthrie, Okla., is believed to have smashed it. Jelsma, it is said, pitched a nine-inning game and delivered only fifty-four balls against the Santa Fe railroad team. He allowed three hits and struck out but one man.

Pugs With Stage Names.
Willie Ritchie, Joe Rivers and Leach Cross, all of whom have been in the public eye of late, fight under assumed names. In fact a big percentage of the more prominent scrappers use stage names in the ring. Here is a list of some of the headliners, giving their real appellations: Joe Rivers—Joe Rivero. Tommy Burns—Noah Brusso. Stanley Ketchel's was—Stanilaus Klecal.

Jim Flynn—Andrew Haymer. K. O. Brown—Valentine Braun. Willie Ritchie—Geary F. A. Steffen. Charley White—Charles Anchowitz. George Chip—George Chipulinos. Wildcat Ferns—Clarence McCubbins. Jack Britton—William J. Breslin.

George Gibson.

Ordinarily when the club physician goes to laying in medicinal supplies he orders by the pound or gallon, but this isn't the case in Pittsburgh just now where George Gibson, Pirate catcher, is taking treatment for a broken ankle. All other cures having failed, the physicians have determined to try radium. Radium costs $3,000,000 a pound.

MOOSE PLAY FIRST GAME AGAINST SOX

Newly Organized Nine Plays First Contest of Season Against Local White Sox.

The newly organized Moose baseball team will play their first game Sunday morning at the Driving park when they are to battle with the Janesville White Sox. The Moose nine has a strong bunch in their lineup and promise to make it decidedly interesting for their opponents Sunday. This game will serve as a work-out preparatory to the contest against the crack Beloit Moose nine at Vost park.

In Brown and Abraham the lodge team has a battery that should make their opponents take notice for "Abe" has done some excellent pitching in Janesville in the past, having pitched winning ball for the Parker Pen nine and the old Cub nine. The rest of the nine is made up of strictly Moose members and practice will be held for the coming two contests. The Sox have no fear of their older opponents as several new men will be in the game Sunday and the Moose will run up against some good twirling as Mullen will be the slab artist to oppose them.

Following is the line-up of the two teams which will battle Sunday: Janesville Moose: Brown, c; Berger or Abraham, p; Huston, 1b; Blunk, ss; Porter, 3b; McDonald, ss; Terwilliger, Ullius and Kopp, fielders; White Sox: French, c; Mullen, p; Stickney, 1b; Dayton, 2b; Lanphere, 2b; Stewart, ss; Britt, Cronin, McKeigue and Finneran, fielders.

When the Mind is Ripened.
No man can learn what he has not preparation for learning, however near to his eyes is the subject. A chemist may tell his most precious secrets to a carpenter, and he shall be never the wiser—the secrets he would not utter to a chemist for an estate. Our eyes are holden that we cannot see things that stare us in the face until the hour arrives when the mind is ripened; then we behold them and the time when we saw them not is like a dream.—Emerson.

Warm Enough?
While coaching a class of children for a little play, the teacher told the boys that in the third act they would have to wear their heavy overcoats, as that would be the snow scene. After a short silence a little fellow about seven years old raised his hand and said: "Teacher, father can't finish my overcoat in time because he works late; but will it be all right if I wear my heavy underwear?"

A dispatch from Pottsville, Pa., says that a letter mailed 52 years ago has just reached its destination in that city. Without reading the story, we are willing to wager 10 to 1 that it contained a remittance that the addressee simply had to have the day after it was written or have all sorts of trouble.

LEST WE FORGET

There should be no mistaken relative to the coming recall election a week from next Tuesday. It is not inopportune at this time to review the real reasons for the recall petition and the conditions that existed in Janesville, previous to the enforcement of the laws and ordinances which brought the present movement into life.

Under the old system of city government, previous to the adoption of the commission form, there had been a great laxity in enforcement of the ordinances relative to the retail liquor business. The eleven o'clock closing ordinance had become a joke. The Sunday closing was only observed by a few; it was easy enough to slip in the side door of the many places, open, and secure all the liquor desired, and oftentimes more.

Wine rooms flourished, minors were sold drinks and permitted to gamble with dice and on slot machines. Disorderly women plied their trade unmolested and young girls wandered the streets, drinking at will in many back rooms, unmolested by the authorities.

Then came the atrocious murder of a young woman by two drunken youths who are now paying their penalties in state's prison. The testimony brought out the fact that they and other minors obtained drinks at almost all bars, that conditions throughout the city were even worse than imagined, and the public rose in its might and demanded a reform.

Mayor Fathers and the members of the council responded. Licenses of two saloons which had sold liquor to minors were revoked. Disorderly women were driven out of the city and their resorts closed. Women and young girls barred from wine rooms and saloons. Dice games abolished, slot machines banished, the eleven o'clock closing ordinance strictly enforced and Sunday closing made effective by throwing open the interior of the saloons to public view by removing screens.

Then came the reduction of the total number of saloons in the city and the establishment of a liquor zone, large enough to take in forty-two retail liquor shops which were granted a license. It was a decided cleaning up of the city. A disruption of the old system of handling business, it took on a few of a few who believed their personal privileges were being taken away from them and they revolted.

They sought to recall all three of the city officials who had been responsible for making the city clean and respectable. They filed petitions with signatures of men obtained by devious methods. They were declared insufficient. No reasons were given for seeking the recall. No reasons have ever been given, except the charge of inefficiency.

Inefficiency in what? In not permitting the brothels and disreputable liquor shops to run unmolested? Inefficiency in not permitting young girls to be debauched in wine rooms and minors made into drunkards? Inefficiency in not permitting a selected few to run their saloons unmolested through a political pull nights, days and Sundays if they chose? These appear to be the only signs of inefficiency displayed.

Is Janesville to take a step backward, to undo the work of the past six months and return to the conditions which existed then, to turn the city over to the same crowd that has run it for so long, or are the citizens of Janesville going to vote their confidence in the present administration, their belief in a clean city, by re-electing Mayor James A. Fathers?

One by one the so-called wide open towns in the state are being closed up. Madison is the latest to feel the effects of the state law and city ordinances and it is reported is as dry as the desert of Sahara on Sundays. Even the theatres are closed and baseball prohibited.

That Liverpool suffragette who confesses to burning property so that the cause of woman's suffrage might have a beacon to attract the attention of the public to them and was proud of it, has not endeared herself to the public as a whole.

Jack Johnson has fled to France and says he will never return to the United States. Jack is a wise colored man if he does not, but perhaps France will not relish his stop with in their boundaries and he may have to move. Just at present Jack is a man without a country.

The only recourse, if Senator La Follette persists in making that week-long tariff speech, is to take a photographic record of it and make him listen to it a few times.

Up in La Crosse the city council has withheld licenses for billiard halls until certain the proprietors will see the laws are obeyed. So reform goes on.

It's pretty tough on Uncle Joe Cannon, but if he stands for another election to congress he will have to provide an appropriation for ice cream sodas as well as campaign cigars.

There is real joy in store for the inquisitive Wu Ting Fang on his forthcoming visit to this country. He has yet to meet Vice President Marshall.

Have a Purpose.

The first great rule is that we must do something—that life must have a purpose and an aim—that work should be not merely occasional and spasmodic, but steady and continuous. Pleasure is a jewel which will only retain its lustre when it is in a setting of work; and a vacant life is one of the worst of pains, though the islands of leisure that stud a crowded, well-occupied life may be among the things to which we look back with the greatest delight.—Lecky.

Where the Calculator Scores.

The best tradition requires that whenever a lightning calculator tells how many seconds there were in the life of Methuselah some one must shout: "Wrong! You've muffed it this time. I've figured the whole thing out, and here are the figures." Whereupon the lightning calculator receives an armful of papers, glances at the first few sheets, looks up, grinning and chuckles: "Just as I thought. You've forgotten the leap year."

MIANTONOMOH.

Into the governor's own pew of the old Boston church, one Sunday in 1832, stalked a gigantic Indian—causing as much excitement and general commotion as a hawk in a dove cote. From mouth to mouth was whispered the news that the strange visitor was Miantonomoh, the famous sachem, who, with his uncle, Canonius, ruled the mighty Narragansett "nation."

He had come to Boston on a mission of peace, and was the honored guest of Governor Winthrop. In fact, all the authorities put themselves to vast trouble to make the visit pleasant for this grim, wise, silent young Indian. For it was useful just then to court the friendship of the Narragansetts. Miantonomoh, being only a savage, believed in all the Puritans' protestations of friendship. To his uncorrupted Indian mind a pledge of friendship was sacred, and friends should stick together through good and evil fortune alike. He swore brotherhood to the English colonists—and kept his oath. They pledged loyal and lasting friendship to him—and in a few years treacherously sacrificed him to their own interests.

A Trust That Was Betrayed.

Miantonomoh, when Canonius died in 1636, became sole ruler of the Narragansetts, Rhode Island being his headquarters, and his own palace—wagwam being perched on what is now known as Tenomys hill, just north of Newport. When the gentle clergyman, Roger Williams, was driven from Massachusetts by the Puritans he was warmly welcomed by Miantonomoh, who gave him land and provisions.

In 1637, when the Pequot war began, Miantonomoh sent the governor of Massachusetts the band of a slain Pequot and 240 feet of wampum as an evidence of his own people's friendliness. When the colonists that year marched against the Pequots, Miantonomoh and his braves joined the militia. This action made the Pequots hate Miantonomoh. They sent him word that if ever he should fall into their hands they would punish his treachery toward them and his friendship for the settlers by boiling him in a caldron of oil. To show how little he feared the threat, Miantonomoh went at once on a journey through the Pequot country and back again, unharmed. Roger Williams strongly advised him not to go, but Miantonomoh replied: "A brave man cannot shun danger."

Uncas, the Mohegan chief, was looming up more and more important in Indian politics. The Puritans saw the urgent need of securing the friendship of so powerful a leader. But Miantonomoh and Uncas were sworn enemies. The colonists' rulers urged the two foes to make peace, but Miantonomoh, as ever, followed the advice of his white friends. In 1633 he and Uncas signed a treaty of friendship (dictated by the colonists), which included a promise to leave all disputes to the English for settlement. The same year Miantonomoh was exiled into selling Rhode Island to the white man for 240 feet of white beadwork.

Soon after this Miantonomoh began to learn a new phase of the colonists' nature. A rumor—apparently with no foundation—reached the Massachusetts colony that he was conspiring against the English. He went alone to Boston to answer the charges. Six years earlier, when he had visited that city, he had been treated like a king. Now he was neglected and even looked upon as an enemy. When he entered the trial room he was actually forbidden to sit at the same table as the English. Nevertheless, as no accusers dared face him, and as he showed a wisdom and dignity that impressed even the Puritan counselors, he was acquitted.

The Penalty of Friendship.

In 1643 Uncas made war on one of the Narragansett sub-chiefs, Sequasson. Miantonomoh, faithful to the terms of his treaty, asked leave of the governor of Hartford to avenge their attack. Permission was granted, and with 1,000 Narragansetts he marched against Uncas and 500 Mohegans. The armies met near Norwich. Miantonomoh wore a coat of mail—a gift from the English, of which he was very proud, but which hampered his movements. Uncas challenged him to single combat. Miantonomoh laughingly refused, saying his followers were there to fight. While the parley was going on Uncas gave a sudden sign, and the Mohegans fell upon their unprepared foes, defeating them and taking Miantonomoh prisoner. The latter's flight was impeded by the English coat of mail. Uncas brought Miantonomoh before a colonial court at Boston. There, in spite of the fact that he had earlier proved his innocence of the same charge, the captive was found guilty of conspiring against the English. The commissioners, on the plea that their ally Uncas' life would be in danger as long as Miantonomoh should live, condemned the gallant sachem to death.

Miantonomoh had trusted and loved the English. They sacrificed him to Uncas and even gave the Mohegan permission to carry out the execution. The only stipulation the white men made, in memory of Miantonomoh's former services, was that he should be merely killed—not tortured as well. So the fallen sachem was led back to the scene of the lost battle, near Norwich, and there struck dead by a tomahawk blow.

TRANSFERRING ST. PAUL SWITCH AT NEW BRIDGE

Nearly a hundred section men were employed this afternoon in transferring the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad switch at the cutoff to the Northwestern side of the upper railroad bridge and all trains of both roads will be run over the new portion of the bridge. Due to misinformation the first train to cross the structure was not the Fond du Lac freight train but passenger train number 34 plying between Fond du Lac and Chicago. The train is due in Janesville at eight o'clock and two hours late because of engine trouble.

AUTOMATIC CORN CUTTER

Ears Fall into Wagon as Revolving Blade Cuts Them Off.

An ingenious machine is the header for the corn invented by an Oklahoma man. The machine is attached to the side of a wagon while what is known as a sloping deck. A vertical shaft runs through it, and at the top of this shaft is a rotary cutter. The gear which drives this cutter is operated by the revolving of the wagon wheel, but as it is a multiple gear the knife revolves much faster than the wheel.

WHEEL OPERATES CUTTER.

A drag chain with gathering fingers is attached to the upper part of the frame and this chain engages the ears of corn and forces them against the cutter. As the ears are severed they fall into the sloping side of the wagon and are projected into a heap in the bottom of the vehicle. A whole field of corn can be headed with this machine in a short time.

EXPLAINS DELAY IN WATER WORKS CASE

CITY ATTORNEY DOUGHERTY ANSWERS STATEMENTS OF RECALLIST CANDIDATE.

CLEAR UP SITUATION

Explains That Work Is Progressing As Fast as Possible Under the Circumstances.

In the following communication to the public City Attorney Dougherty answers the arguments relative to the purchase of the Janesville Water Company by the city of Janesville, as advanced by the leader of the recall element. He explains away many facts which have been clouded by mis-statements of facts and puts the matter on a basis where all fair minded men can fully understand the delay which is the subject of discussion at this time. Mr. Dougherty writes as follows:
To The Gazette:—
In an effort to cloud the situation confronting the people on July 22, Mr. Nichols has deliberately sought to create the impression that the present Mayor has been seeking to impede the purchase of the Janesville Water Works. Some of the adherents of the Recall candidate have even gone further and have industriously sought to create the impression that the Mayor and myself were being improperly influenced. Of course they have never felt it necessary to point out any fault in our procedure, but have simply contented themselves with a broadside and let it go at that.
The points involved in the Water case are intricate and were all in the case when the present Mayor was elected. If there is any fault to be found for delay it must be attributed to those who submitted the question. I contend that the decision in the Racine case now pending is conclusive in the Janesville case and am supported in that by the Railroad Commission, as that by the Railroad Commission, as that will be seen by the following letter:
"As I informed you in our conversation one of the objections interposed to the jurisdiction of the Commission in the Racine Water Company case is also presented in this case. The Racine Water Company has now taken this matter into Court and we are waiting for a ruling of the Court. Should the Court overrule the Commission then it will be necessary for city of Racine to again vote upon the proposition. It would also be necessary for the city of Janesville to again vote upon the proposition as the question submitted in the Racine case is subject to all the alleged infirmities in the question in the Racine case.
Under the circumstances, if an amicable agreement can be made between the city authorities and the water company for the purchase of the plant, which agreement would not be in excess of what the Commission would consider fair and reasonable, it would be advisable to pursue this course and obviate protracted and necessarily expensive litigation."
Now if any one can advance a sound reason why I should get this city involved in expensive litigation, under these circumstances, I would be glad to hear it.
I just telephoned Mr. Burgess, the City Attorney of Racine, this morning and he advises me that Judge Belden has sustained the city on all points. I have asked for the decision and as soon as it reaches me I will call it to the attention of the Railroad Commission and ask that their final certificate be entered. Mr. Burgess also advises that the case was being prepared for the Supreme Court at the next term.
It would strike me that if you can let someone else fight your lawsuit without expense, it is good economy to do it. The law business of the city should be conducted along safe, conservative lines, the same as the law business of an individual and should not be made the means of exploiting a political campaign.
Let this be understood. I have handled this case along lines that have met the approval of the Railroad Commission, and no step of any kind has been taken without its knowledge. Also let this be known. Mr. Nichols can do no more to bring about the consummation of this purchase, than is already being done, and it betrays a lack of understanding to claim otherwise.
The Water Case is not an issue in this campaign but is injected simply for the purpose of political advantage. At all events the City Attorney is the one to be held responsible for the handling of the City law business and not the Mayor.
Another matter that has been grossly misrepresented is the Bridge situation and this will be cleared up at once.
Respectfully submitted,
W. H. DOUGHERTY.

Czar's Brutal Amusement.

On feast days the life of the czar of the seventeenth century was enlivened with such amusements as a battle to the death between a well-baited bear and a spearman, in which, it is said, frequently the man lost his life. In the event of a successful issue the spearman was rewarded by being taken to the royal cellar, where he was allowed to drink to his capacity.

THINGS ARE COMING
LLOYD-GEORGE'S WAY

The Marconi scandal in England, which for a time threatened the political life of Chancellor Lloyd-George, has finally blown over. Lloyd-George admitted that he had made a mistake in speculating in the Marconi company's stocks, and this admission resulted in his return to popular favor.

Lloyd-George's insurance act is now being tried out in Great Britain and gives every promise of adding to his popularity among the masses.

CELEBRATED BEAUTY
BECOMES A MOTHER

Miss Nancy Johnson, daughter of Congressman Ben Johnson of Bardonia, Ky., is considered one of the best looking young ladies in the congressional set at the capital. Her father has been in congress for six years.

MISS ELSIE WASSAU WEDS
CHICAGO SCHOOL TEACHER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, July 11.—Miss Elsie Wassau, a well-known Edgerton young lady, was united in marriage last evening to Albert Fakke of Chicago. Mr. Fakke is a professor in one of the Chicago schools.

The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. Robert Fakke of New Mello, Mo., at the bride's home. Miss Beatrice Fakke of New Mello was bridesmaid and Mr. Gose of Chicago was best man.

The bride wore white crepe du chien over white mesaline and wore orange blossoms in her veil. The bridesmaid wore white voile over pink mesaline. The house was decorated in white and green and the ceremony took place under an arch of green and white.

The couple left on their honeymoon and managed to elude their friends so well that no one knows where they went.

Personals.
Miss Anna Smith, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Helge Moon, for the past few weeks, returned to her home in Brooklyn today.

Mrs. G. W. Doly and Mrs. M. L. Bintliff spent yesterday with Mrs.

Tender Heart.
An Irishman, being asked by his angry master what he did to the dog every day to make him cry out as if he were treated, replied: "Cruelly! I never could hurt a poor dumb creature in me life; but yer honor made me cut his tail, and so I only cut a little bit off every day, to make it more easy for him."

Echo of the Circus.
"Oh, mamma," shouted little Eddie, as he ran to his mother in great glee, "what do you think? I was just over there where they're putting up the circus, and they're filling the ring all full of breakfast food."

Porch Plant.
Save the top of a pineapple, put it in a pint jar filled with water and it will soon rot. Then put it as you would any other plant and it makes a pretty decoration for the porch.—Mothers' Magazine.

Carlyle's Caustic Humor.
By a great and extraordinary piece of magnanimity the prime minister of the day offered to make Carlyle a Grand Cross of the Bath in a very admirable and interesting letter, to which Carlyle replied in a perfectly worthy way. But Carlyle in private said—he was then very old: "What should I do with a G. C. B.? They would say Grand Cap and Bells."

Tough for the Baby.
In one of the Cleveland schools the girls use a live baby in learning how to bathe an infant. It may be good for the girls, but we can't help feeling a little sorry for the child.

JANESVILLE,
FRIDAY
JULY 11, 1913.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Observations taken at 8 a. m., 75th meridian, time. Air pressure reduced to sea level. Isobars (continuous lines) pass through points of equal air pressure. Isotherms (dotted lines) pass through points of equal temperature; drawn only for zero, freezing, 50°, and 100°.

Clear; partly cloudy; cloudy; rain; snow; report missing. Arrows fly with the wind. First figures, lowest temperature past 12 hours; second, precipitation of .01 inch or more for past 24 hours; third, maximum wind velocity.

July 11, 1913.—An unusually intense barometric depression is moving eastward across the Northern Plains, attended by a trough that extends down the Missouri valley and across the southern slope of the Rockies to Arizona. Showers and thunderstorms are reported throughout the northwest. Winnipeg reports a rainfall of 1.18 inches, Minnedosa, 1.25, and Huron 1.48. A local storm at Memphis was attended by a rainfall of 1.35 inches. There have been light rains in New England, but the weather is now generally fair throughout the east. The barometer is unusually high on the North Pacific coast, and settled weather prevails there.

In this vicinity the approach of the area of low barometer now in the northwest will be attended by thunderstorms, tonight and probably Saturday. There will not be much change in temperature. Southerly winds will prevail, and the thunderstorms are likely to be attended by squalls, so that canoes and small boats should be navigated with caution.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Observations taken at 8 a. m., 75th meridian, time. Air pressure reduced to sea level. Isobars (continuous lines) pass through points of equal air pressure. Isotherms (dotted lines) pass through points of equal temperature; drawn only for zero, freezing, 50°, and 100°.

Clear; partly cloudy; cloudy; rain; snow; report missing. Arrows fly with the wind. First figures, lowest temperature past 12 hours; second, precipitation of .01 inch or more for past 24 hours; third, maximum wind velocity.

July 11, 1913.—An unusually intense barometric depression is moving eastward across the Northern Plains, attended by a trough that extends down the Missouri valley and across the southern slope of the Rockies to Arizona. Showers and thunderstorms are reported throughout the northwest. Winnipeg reports a rainfall of 1.18 inches, Minnedosa, 1.25, and Huron 1.48. A local storm at Memphis was attended by a rainfall of 1.35 inches. There have been light rains in New England, but the weather is now generally fair throughout the east. The barometer is unusually high on the North Pacific coast, and settled weather prevails there.

In this vicinity the approach of the area of low barometer now in the northwest will be attended by thunderstorms, tonight and probably Saturday. There will not be much change in temperature. Southerly winds will prevail, and the thunderstorms are likely to be attended by squalls, so that canoes and small boats should be navigated with caution.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

LAUNCHING REFORMS.

A YOUNG friend of mine whose besetting weakness is her uncontrollable temper, has moved into a pretty new home.

A group of us called on her there and were shown the new domain by the proud possessor. "And let me tell you the best thing," she said, as we finished the inspection. "It doesn't show like the closets and the open fire place, but I think it's best of all. I made a resolution when I came here not to give way to my temper in this new place and I haven't yet, and that's four weeks ago," vigorously knocking on the wooden arm of her piazza chair.

Of course we laughed, and then someone asked, "May we know the connection between temper and a new house? Is it easier to keep your temper in a brand new house? I guess I'll have to persuade my husband to buy me one if it is."

"Why, the only connection is that when you go to any new place you feel as if you were starting life all new, and so it's a good chance to leave your faults behind. We've moved three times and each time I've begun the new life with the determination to get rid of some of my horrible temper. Of course, the other moves were just little changes from one hired apartment to another, and since this is the biggest change I'm going to try to make more change in myself."

We all laughed at the lady's philosophy, but after all I thought it pretty fine.

So fine, in fact, that having recently moved myself, I am trying to make this change a part on which to hang a reform of my habit of procrastination. I am beginning the new regime by going directly from breakfast to my work instead of dawdling about and looking for things to fritter away time upon, as I used to do; and I find it much easier to inculcate the new habit under the stimulus of new surroundings and conditions.

Good habits are very hard to launch, and it is very difficult indeed to find the right time to launch them. Some day, we all think, the auspicious time will come to overcome our besetting weakness, but we know it is not today. And if a new regime of some sort will give us the needed impetus toward finding that "some day," let us seize every such opportunity. Nor need the new regime necessarily be the move into a new home. You have a lovely new gown. Why not make the occasion of launching a habit of more careful grooming? You have a new desk. Is not that the opportunity to be more orderly? And why should not the new watch of which you are so proud help you to launch the habit of punctuality.

Perhaps these seem but slender pegs to hang such big reforms upon, but slenderer pegs have held greater changes.

third cupful; soft bread crumbs, one-third cupful; grated cheese, one and one-third cupfuls; butter, one tablespoonful; salt, one-half teaspoonful; eggs, four.

Directions—Mix the milk, bread crumbs, salt and cheese; add the yolks, thoroughly beat into this mixture, cut and fold the whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cook thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Plain Gingerbread.

Materials—Molasses, one cupful; flour, two and one-fourth cupfuls; boiling water, one-half cupful; melted butter, four tablespoonfuls; soda, one teaspoonful; ginger, one and one-half teaspoonful; eggs, one.

Directions—Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add the water to the molasses and combine with the dry mixture; beat well and pour into a crackle box which is already lined with waxed paper. Tie a string or tape around the box to keep it from expanding too much and losing its shape and bake in a moderate oven twenty-five minutes. When ready to serve, with a sharp knife cut down through the four corners of the box, lay the sides, ends and paper flat and slice the gingerbread. Throw the box into the waste basket.

A STUDY IN CHEESE.

Cheese is one of our most valuable foods, and as the United States ranks high in cheese production, its citizens should be informed on its value commercially as well as dietetically. We have quite successfully imitated many of the foreign varieties, and established our own reputation as to American cheese.

We get Stilton, a rich, choice cheese, and Cheddar, pale and nutty, from England. From France comes Gruyere, which is full of large holes and is especially good in cookery. Neufchatel, Camembert and Brie, as well as the fascinating Roquefort, such a favorite among cheese lovers. From Holland comes the famous Edam; from Germany the odoriferous Limburger, which is said to be most delicious to those who are brave enough to let it pass the nose, and from the sunny south beyond the Alps comes Parmesan and Gorgonzola.

Those who have not cultivated a taste for cheese are deprived of one of the choicest favors in our list of foods. As a finish for dinner, there is nothing more to the popular taste than cheese, crackers and a cup of black coffee. Roquefort is the most commonly liked, served in this manner.

Cream cheese and cheese crackers are very appropriate served with the salad course. Cheese crackers are prepared by sprinkling a mild grated cheese over salted wafers, dashing a bit of cayenne and then putting them into a hot oven to melt the cheese.

Many have never tried the good combination of boiled rice and cheese, which makes a good, nutritious and cheap dish. Put a layer of cooked cheese in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with grated cheese and bits of butter and salt; repeat, and add sufficient milk to moisten, and bake thoroughly hot.

Cheese canapés may be served as a first course for a luncheon or dinner, and are prepared by spreading soft cheese on shaped pieces of buttered bread, and finish with a fourth-inch border of chopped olives and a piece of red pimiento cut in fancy shape in the center. Canapés are always eaten from the fingers.

Cream of cheese soup is a most delicious soup to serve for a luncheon.

Here is a "character" given to a servant on leaving her last situation: "The bearer has been in my house a year, less 11 months. During this time she has shown herself diligent at the house door, frugal in work, mindful of herself, prompt in excuses, friendly towards men, faithful to her lovers, and honest when everything was out of the way."—London Tit-Bits.

TWO AMERICAN WOMEN MAKE HIT IN SOCIETY OF THE WORLD'S METROPOLIS; WIFE OF FORBES ROBERTSON BECOMES PEEFRESS

Two American women who are very popular in London society this season are Lady Forbes Robertson, known intimately to playgoers as Gertrude Elliott, and Miss Dorothy Bigelow. Miss Bigelow is a granddaughter of John Bigelow, the famous American author.

By reason of the title bestowed on her husband, Lady Forbes Robertson has entered the ranks of English "baronesses." Her sister, Maxine Elliott, for some time the favorite of the "rich and great" in English society, and Lady Forbes Robertson will now receive a still warmer welcome from the "400" of the world's metropolis.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.

Plenty of charcoal sprinkled among potatoes which are to be stored in a cellar a long time will keep them in remarkably good condition.

For cleaning tinware try dry flour applied with newspaper.

Turnips are improved by adding one or two tablespoonfuls of sugar when cooking.

To save iron saucepans turn each one up on the kitchen range once a week and give the outside a coating of blacklead. This will not only make the sauce pans last longer and add to their appearance, but it will also prevent anything cooked in them from adhering to the sauce pans.

The Table.

Montana Steak—One pound of lean mutton, free from the bone. One egg, one-half cup of milk, one teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and a few drops of onion juice. Chop the meat finely, add the other things, form into small cakes and either fry or broil them. The egg isn't necessary; neither is the onion.

Banana Cream.—After peeling the bananas mash them fine with a spoon. Then take equal parts of bananas and sweet cream, and to one quart of this mixture add one-fourth pound of granulated sugar. Beat all together until the cream is light.

Deviled Cheese.—Mix together a half-pound of Philadelphia cream cheese, three ounces of the prepared Roquefort which comes in jars, two stalks of chives finely minced, a half teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of paprika, one drop of Tabasco, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire, and two tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup. Work and blend thoroughly, using a wooden beetle. Pack in jars and cover and keep in a cold place. It is good as a sandwich filling, to spread on saltines for the salad course, or to serve with water crackers after coffee.

Strawberry Dessert.—Put a pint of sweet milk in a double boiler. When it comes to a boil stir into the milk two tablespoonfuls of corn starch which has been dissolved in a little cold water. Let boil five minutes, add one egg, well beaten and half cup of sugar, a pinch of salt, let cook two minutes, stirring all the time. Flavor with vanilla and stir in a cup of strawberries which have been crushed and sweetened. Remove from the fire and beat well for one minute. Serve with sugar and cream. Use other fruits, peaches, fresh or canned, chopped fine, etc. If there is much juice the mixture will have to be boiled a little, in order to be stiff enough.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

Young men, sons of our city wake up! Leave you of the parasitical kind? Do you pay your way, or are you a human sponge holding no particular place in life?

Like the average young man of the middle class you were fed, clothed, sent to school and church, through your age of adolescence. Your parents now on the decline had high hopes for you! Many a time your father wore patched clothes, your mother faded aprons that you might have the fancy cravat and patent leathers when you stood up in Sophomore extemporaneous.

Forgotten Johnny? And now you, Johnny, are no longer a boy, but a man; and what type? Judge yourself! Are you the pride and joy of your old father's heart? Is your step always steady? Your eye always clear? Your work perfect? Have you the confidence of the man higher up and your fellow man?

With the day's work finished do you stop at the newsstand for the latest magazine, trot home, eat the good, wholesome supper mother has prepared, move the lawn, and let dad sit on the porch and smoke his pipe? Do you take an interest in your home? Do you stay home TWO nights a week?

Do father and you go to the ball park. Do you take mother and sister Jane to church or an occasional good show or lecture?

You are the young man we want in our city—in our country—the clean cut, clear headed fellow whose very presence in the community may be likened to a sound block in a strong foundation. Johnny, as you stand on the threshold of manhood tell yourself you'll be a big man, big with a big heart that will tolerate no petty measures, no pasted down pages in your life's book. When you have run your life's race let it be truthfully said of you, "The world was just the least bit better because one good man has lived."

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY MRS. ALICE GUTCHILL, FORD.

Let us cook our Sunday dinner in paper bags. This is not a new idea, as many women are very familiar with them, and with the use of the paper bag in cooking the food is wonderfully improved, clean, sanitary and a great saving of dishwashing. Soyer, the English chef, who first perfected the idea of successful bag cookery says:

"Paper bag cooking for dwellers in flats and in single rooms is the solution of many a difficulty. One of the chief drawbacks to flats has been the difficulty of avoiding the smell of cookery. With the paper bag there is no smell. In the small kitchen there is little space for pots and pans. None are needed for paper bag cooking."

Girls and women living alone in single rooms, typists, clerks and school teachers, would rather dine or sup on a bun and glass of milk than face the trouble after a weary day of cooking a meal and washing up afterwards. They may provide themselves with a simple and sufficient meal in half an hour, and have nothing to wash but a plate and a knife and fork if they procure the new paper bags.

"Since I started to proclaim the fact that the vast majority of dishes that are placed on the average British table can be cooked in paper bags I have been encouraged by the cordial endorsement of many well known epicures and brother chefs. Among the latter are nearly all the leading chefs in London, and among the former men with such commanding experiences as Sir Joseph Lyons, who has pointed out the cleanliness of the method. "It is a preventative," he said, "of the congregation of microbes that often germinate disease. In many working-class homes, for various reasons, the dishes and pans lie about on tables and dressers without being cleaned for two hours. Habit, neglect, and want of time are some of the reasons. The result is that microbes are drawn to the grease and are not so easily exterminated."

"Under this system cleanliness is assured. The microbes have no resting place. The clean bag is at hand. When done with it can be thrown into the fire and thus it secures a clean kitchen for the homes of the people."

CAN THESE WOMEN FAIRLY DECIDE LAWSUIT? SAN FRANCISCO'S FIRST FEMALE JURY

Standing left to right—Miss Anita Dobratz, Mrs. Emma McLoughlin, Mrs. B. F. Wilhoit, Mrs. A. L. Bradley, Mrs. Lillie Rothchild and Mrs. John Hermon. Seated, left to right—Mrs. Charles Bauer, Mrs. J. C. Levy, Mrs. Martin Rosensbergtr, Mrs. Roy Williams and Mrs. Christiana Kleinhammer and Mrs. Isador Jacobs.

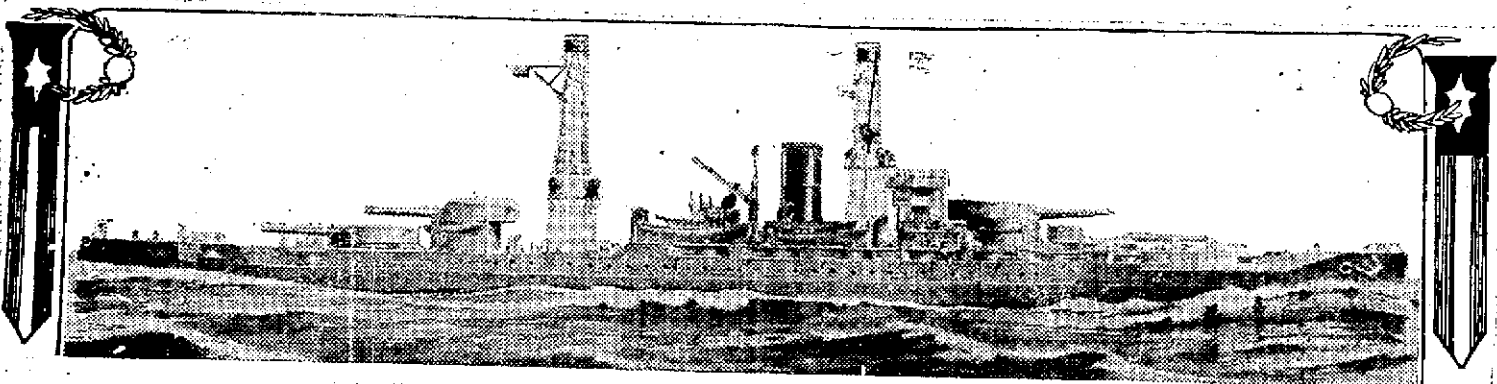

(Special) —San Francisco's first and her demands were finally acquiesced in. Those present at the trial declare that this is one of the most intelligent juries that has sat in San Francisco trial in years. Here are the "12 good women and true" who make up the jury:

Mrs. Charles Baur, Mrs. J. C. Levy, Mrs. Martin Rosensbergtr, Mrs. Roy Williams, Mrs. Christiana Kleinhammer, Miss Anna Dobratz, Mrs. Emma McLoughlin, Mrs. B. F. Wilhoit, Mrs. A. L. Bradley, Mrs. Lillie Rothchild, Mrs. John Hermon, and Mrs. Isador Jacobs.

Of these Mrs. J. C. Levy is a prominent clubwoman and past president of the council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Rosensbergtr is the wife of the well known physician, and Mrs. Isador Jacobs, wife of the reformer who has been identified with the Good Government league, the league of justice and other similar organizations.

Judge Dunne, who is presiding at the trial, has expressed his approval of the women jurors, saying there was no rush to his desk with reasons for there being excused from duty, as was the case when the panel was solely of men.

CALL BIG GUNS TO TELL WHAT THEY KNOW OF MANUFACTURERS' LOBBY; PROMINENT POLITICIANS INVOLVED IN MULHALL'S STORY

Top, left to right: Ferdinand C. Schwedtmann, Henry M. Coudry and James E. Watson. Bottom, left to right: Charles E. Littlefield, John J. Jenkins and D. M. Parry.

Here are some of the men who, according to Col. Martin M. Mulhall, a former agent of the American Association of Manufacturers in Washington, were active in fighting labor and who were involved one way or another, with the so-called manufacturers' lobby at Washington. Watson is an Indiana ex-congressman; Jenkins is a Wisconsin ex-congressman; Littlefield is a Maine ex-congressman; Schwedtmann, Mulhall says, assisted in directing the work of the lobby; D. M. Parry is a former president of the N. A. M., who is charged with having been very active in forming the lobby.

JOHN WANAMAKER OBSERVES SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Philadelphia, Pa., July 11.—Receiving congratulations from friends in all parts of the country, John Wanamaker, the celebrated merchant and philanthropist, quietly observed his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary today. Mr. Wanamaker was born in Philadelphia and has passed the whole of his life here, with the exception of a year that he spent in Indiana in early manhood and several years when his position as postmaster general necessitated his residence in Washington. Since his serious illness of a year ago the famous merchant has withdrawn to some extent from active participation in business affairs. Much of his attention is given to the Y. M. C. A., the Sunday schools and the numerous charities and philanthropies of which he has been a generous supporter for many years.

Those Good Old Times.

Bobby's grandfather often referred to the good old days when such commodities as meat, vegetables, fruit, etc., were grown and prepared at home. One day at dinner the mince pie was praised. "But I'll bet," declared the five-year-old boy loyally, "it's nothing like the pie that grandma used to make when she raised and picked her own minces; is it, grandma?"

"Yes," replied Simon P. Groot, "it was all true, but the frills you trim off the frills for ten dollars."

"Fair dealing for a fair price is my motto; you'll find it in gilt lettering on the back of the wagon. I will."

"That were you doing on Hawkhill Cliff?"

"Sleeping in the wagon."

"And you really met this mysterious wanderer?"

"Sure as you're standing there."

"What passed between you?"

"I gave her good evening, and she spoke to me fair enough but queer, and said that my children's children might remember the day. Now, I ain't got any children to have children; so I wouldn't have thought of it again but for the man that came inquiring after her."

"When was that?"

"Not fifteen minutes after."

"Did you tell the crowd here that?"

"Yes," said two dozen wedding-rings on the strength and romance of that point. From my description they allowed it was a painter man named Sedgwick. I thought maybe I'd call in and have him touch up the wagon a bit where she's rusty."

"And you heard the woman cry out less than an hour later?"

"That's a curious thing. I'd have almost sworn it was a man's voice that yelled. It went through me like a sharpened icicle."

"All this was night before last. What have you been doing meantime?"

"Drove over to Marcus Corners to trade yesterday. There I heard about the murder; and came back here to make a little business out of it. I've done fine."

"Look here!" said Simon P. Groot after a spell of thoughtfulness. "Your ten dollars is good, and you're a gent, all right; but I think I've talked a little too much with my mouth around here, and I'm afraid they might dig up this lady and start something new and want me for a witness. Witnessing is bad for business."

"I'm safe," said Kent.

"So far so good. Now, would it be worth five dollars for you, likely, a relic of the murderer?" suggested the old man.

"Quite likely."

"Mum's the word, then, for my part in it. That next morning I followed her trail a ways. You see, the well in the night had got me interested. It was an easy trail to follow for a man this acquainted in the woods, and I was now a grubber. Do a little of it now, sometimes. She'd been somebody in a thicker. I found the string and the paper of the bundle she was carrying, there. Then there was a light of some sort; for the twigs were broken right to the edge of the thicket, and the ground stamped down. One or both of 'em must have broken out into the open, and I lost the trail. But this is what I found on a hazel bush. Do I win the five on it?"

Kent's eyes dropped, fixing themselves on a small object which the other had laid on his knee. His lips pursed. Nothing that could be interpreted as an answer came from them. Simon P. Groot waited with patience. Finally he said:

"That's an awful pretty tune you're whistling, mister, but sad, and terrible long. What about the five? Do we trade?"

The car came to a stop. Digging into his pocket, Kent produced a bill which he handed over, and still whispering the long-meter China, took possession of Simon P. Groot's relic. It was an unadorned silver star, with a few torn wisps of cloth clinging to it.

CHAPTER VIII
Reckonings

Facts that contradict each other are not facts," pronounced Chester Kent. "Fumes of tobacco were rising from three pipes hovered about the porch of the Rock where Kent, Sedgwick and Lawyer Baines were holding late council. A discouraged observation from the artist had elicited Kent's epigram.

"Not all of them, anyhow," said Kent. "The checker in this case is to find facts enough to work on."

"On the contrary," declared Kent, "facts in this case are as plentiful as blackberries. The trouble is that we have no nail to put them in."

"Maybe we could borrow Len Schlager's," suggested the lawyer dryly.

Kent received this with a subdued snort. "It is remarkable that the newspapers haven't sent men down on such a sensation case to you, sir."

"On the contrary," he said, "replied Baine, "so much fake stuff has come out of Lonesome Cove that the papers discount any news from here."

"All the better. The only thing that worries me more is the stupidity of professional detectives. The shrewdness of trained reporters. At least we can work this out in our own way."

"We don't seem to be getting much of anywhere," complained Sedgwick. "Complicated cases don't clear themselves up in a day," remarked Kent. "In this one we've got oppo-ents who know more than we do."

"Schlager," asked the lawyer. "And Doctor Breed. Also, I think, Gansett Jim. What do you think, Mr. Baine, is the mainspring of the sheriff's action?"

"Money," said the lawyer with conviction. "He's as crooked as a snake with the colic."

"Would it require much money to influence him?"

"As much as he could get. If the case was in the line of blackmail, he'd hold out strong. He's shrewd."

"Doctor Breed must be getting some of it."

"Oh, Tim Breed is Len's little dog. He takes orders. Of course he'll take money too, if it comes his way. Like master, like man."

"Those two," said Kent slowly, "know the identity of the body. For good and sufficient reasons they are keeping that information to themselves. Those reasons we aren't likely to find out from them."

"Murderer has bribed 'em," opined Baine.

"Possibly. But that presupposes that the sheriff found something on the body which led him to the murderer which isn't likely. How improbable it is that a murderer—allowing, for argument, that there has been murder—who would go as far as to cover his trail and the nature of the crime by binding the body on a grating, would overlook anything like a letter incriminating himself."

"What did the sheriff find, then, in the dead woman's pocket?"

"Perhaps a handkerchief with a distinctive mark."

"And that would lead him to the identity of the body?"

"Presumably. Also to some one, we may assume, who was willing to pay roundly to have that identity concealed."

"That would naturally be the murderer, wouldn't it?" asked Sedgwick.

"No, I don't think so."

"It looks to me so," said the lawyer. "He's the one naturally interested in concealment."

"I'm almost ready to dismiss the notion of a murderer at all."

"Why so?" demanded both the others.

"Because there was no murder. Probably."

"How do you make that out?" queried Baine.

"From the nature of the wounds that caused death."

"They look to me to be just such wounds as would be made by a blow with a heavy club."

"Several blows with a heavy club might have caused such wounds. But the blows would have had to be delivered with a club on the skull, six inches in diameter, impinging on the right ear, is crushed in. If you can imagine a man swinging a baseball bat at the height of his shoulder, repeatedly and with great force, at the victim's head, you can infer such a crushing in of the bone. My imagination hardly carries me so far."

"Beating down from above would be the natural way," said Baine.

"Certainly. Such blow ever made that wound."

"Then how was it made?" asked Sedgwick.

"Probably by a fall from the cliff to the rocks below."

"And the fall broke the manacle from the right wrist?"

"The broken manacle was never on the right wrist."

"That's merely conjecture," said the lawyer.

"No, it's certainty. A blow heavy enough to break that iron, old as it is, must have left a mark on the flesh. There was no mark."

"But what conceivable motive could the dead woman have in dressing herself up like a party going to meet a man, and chaining him to a tree?"

"When you have a bizarre crime you must look for bizarre motives. Just at present I'm dealing with facts. The iron was on the left wrist of the body; therefore it was on the right wrist of the unknown companion. It is natural to perform a quick, deft act like snapping on a handcuff with the right hand. Hence, presumably, your visitor was the one who claimed the cuffs."

"And the man broke off his?"

"Yes. But only after a struggle, undoubtedly. If I could find a man with a badly bruised right wrist, I should consider the trail's end in sight. You'll make inquiries, will you, Mr. Baine?"

"I will, and I'll keep an eye on Len Schlager and the Doc. Anything more now? If not, I'll say good night."

"After the lawyer had made his way into the darkness, Kent turned to his host. "This affair is really becoming a very pretty problem. Why didn't you tell me of your meeting with Simon P. Groot?"

"The patriarch in the circus was on."

"Oh! I'd forgotten. Why, when I was trying to trail the women, I chanced upon him. He asked if he had seen her. He hadn't."

"He had. Also he heard a terrified cry shortly after. The cry, he thought, was in a man's voice. Simon P. Groot isn't wholly lacking in sense of observation."

"A man's voice in a cry? What could that mean?"

"Oh, any one of several hundred unthinkable things," said Kent patiently. "Wait! She must have attacked some other man, as she did me. She was going to a rendezvous, wasn't she? Then she and the man she went to meet quarreled, and he killed her by throwing her over the cliff."

"And the handcuffs?"

Sedgwick's hands went to his head. "That, of course, is the inexplicable thing. But don't you think that was the way she met her death?"

"No."

"Then what do you think?"

"Never mind that at present. The point is that Simon P. Groot naturally supposed you to have been mixed up in whatever tragedy there was going. You've an unfortunate knack of manufacturing evidence against yourself, Sedgwick. The redeeming feature is that the sheriff can't very well use it to arrest you."

"I don't see why."

Kent chuckled. "Don't you see that the sheriff wants to do is to arrest anybody?"

"No, I don't."

"Why, he has the body safely buried, now. You'll remember that he was in a great hurry to get it buried. Identification is what he dreaded. Danger of identification is now over. If any one should be arrested, the body would be exhumed and the danger would return in aggravated form. No, he wants you suspected, not arrested."

"He certainly is getting his wish!"

"For the present. Well, I'm off."

"Why don't you move your things from the hotel and stay here with me?" suggested Sedgwick.

"Getting nervous," inquired Kent. "It isn't that; but I think I could make you more comfortable."

Kent shook his head. "Thank you, but I don't think I'd better. What I'm at work on is a case I need privacy."

"And so you stick to a public hotel. Queer notions—your have of privacy."

"Not at all. A hotel is absolutely mine to do with as I please, as long as I pay my bills. I'm among strangers; I'm not interfered with. No, no, not even a man's own, can possibly be so private as a strange hotel."

"Perhaps you're right," admitted the other, with a laugh; then, lapsing into pronounced gloom for the first time, he said: "I seem pretty tough that I should be in all this coil and tangle because a crazy woman happened by mere chance to make a call on me."

"And silence before he replied. "The delivered himself as follows: "Sedgwick"—"puff"—"try"—"puff"—"forget you can"—"puff"—"that stuff about the crazy woman"—"puff"—"puff"—"puff."

"Forget it? How should I? Why should I?"

"Because"—"puff"—"you're absolutely on"—"puff"—"wrong track. Good night."

Slowly Kent climbed the road to the crest of the hill; then stopped and looked back into the studio, which he had sprung to light as soon as he left. Sedgwick's figure loomed, tall and spare, in the radiance. The artist was standing before his easel, looking down at it fixedly. Kent knew that it was that he gazed on, and as the lovely wistful girl's face in his memory he sighed, a little.

"I mustn't forget that quest," he said. "Poor old Sedgwick!"

But, once in his room the picture faded, and there came before his grasping mental vision instead the spectacle of two dark figures, chained together and battling, the one for life, the other for some mysterious elusive motive that fluttered at the portals of his comprehension like a half-remembered melody. And the second struggling figure, whose face was hidden, flashed in the moonlight with the sheen of silver against black.

CHAPTER IX
Chester Declines a Job

Sundayman's Creek Road, turning aside just before it gains the turnpike to the Byrie Hotel to evade a stretch of marsh, travels on wooden stilts across a deep, clear, and a spring. Signs at each end of the crossing threaten financial penalties against any vehicle traversing the measure of a walk for horse and rider. A light electric car, carrying a stout, elderly man, who peered out with weary eyes into the glory of the July sunshine. At the end of the bridge the car stopped to allow its occupant a better view of a figure prostrate on the brink of the pool. Presently the figure came to the posture of all fours. The face turned upward, and the motorist caught the glint of a monocle. Then the face turned again to its quest.

"Are you looking for something, lost?" asked the man in the car.

"Yes," was the reply. "Very much lost."

"When did you lose it? If it's not an important question?"

"Not in the least," answered the other cordially. "I didn't lose it at all."

"Ah!" The motorist smiled. "When was it lost, then?"

"Across the mooned face passed a shadow of thoughtful consideration. "About four million years ago, I should judge."

"And you are still looking? I perceive that you are an optimist," said the elderly man.

"Just at present I'm a limnologist."

A limnologist. Limnology is the science of the life found on the banks of some bodies of water. It is a fascinating study, I assure you. There is only one chain of limnology in the world."

"And you, I presume, are the incumbent of that office?"

"No, indeed! The nearest amateur, on the contrary, I'm humbly hoping to discover the eggs of certain neurotic insects. We know the insects, and we know they lay eggs. But how they conceal them has been a secret since the first dragon-fly rose from the first pool."

"Ah! You are an entomologist, then?"

"To some extent."

"So was I, once—when I had more time. Business has drawn my attention, though never my interest, away from it. I've entirely dropped my reading in the last year. By the way, were you here in time to witness the swarm of Antipos last month? Rather unusual, I think."

"No, I missed that. What was the feature, specially?"

"The suddenness of the appearance. You know, Edmund said that—'Pardon me, Who?'"

"Edmund, the Belgian."

"Oh, yes, certainly. Go on!"

The stranger went on at some length. He appeared to be an interested rather than a learned student of the subject. As he talked, sitting on the step of his car, from which he had descended, the other studied him, his quiet but forceful voice, his severely handsome face, with its high brows, harsh nose, and chiseled lines, from which the eyes looked forth thoughtful, alert, yet with the gaze of a man in pain. Presently he said courteously:

"If you are going back to the hotel, may I take you along? I am Alexander Blair."

"Thank you. I'll be glad of a lift. My name is Chester Kent."

"Not the Professor Kent of the Ramsay case?"

"The same. You know, Mr. Blair, I've always believed that you had more of a hand in Ramsay's death than I. Now, if you wish to withdraw your offer of a lift—"

"Not at all. A man who has been so abused by the newspapers as I can stand a little plain speaking. For all that, on my word, Professor Kent, I had no hand in sending Ramsay on that dirty business of his."

The scientist considered him thoughtfully. "Well, I believe you," said he shortly, and got into the machine.

"This meeting is a fortunate chance for me," said Blair presently.

"Sir," replied Fox, "she has been washed in the naunce and found wanting."

Dinner Stories

Pat could not find his watch, so he went to his friend, the lieutenant, at the police station, and reported that he lost it. The lieutenant assured him that he would not leave a stone unturned until the watch had been found.

Pat returned home much comforted by his friend's assurance, and a few hours later discovered the watch in the lining of his vest, so he set out immediately for the police station to inform the lieutenant of his find.

As he was passing along his way he saw some men who were tearing up stones in the street to put in gas pipes and going up to them said, "Niver mind, fads, I've found the watch."

A good story is told of W. J. Fox, a free-trade colleague of John Bright. Fox was a clever debater and unexcelled in repartee. His chief heckler in Oldham was a local baker who once had the misfortune to be fined by the magistrate for selling short-weight bread. Fox also had the misfortune to separate from his wife. On one occasion, after he had delivered an address to his constituents the baker got up and said:

Nye's Humorous Compliment.
Bill Nye was once introduced to Wagner, the composer. In "Then and Now" Dean Hale relates: "Nye, the American humorist, brilliant as the best, whose comedy never falls to charm, and whose tragic death I shall never cease to mourn, told me that when he met Wagner he said to him, 'Your music is beyond my comprehension, but I always feel sure when I hear it that it is really much better than it sounds.'"

What Is Thy Name?

By REV. PARLEY E. ZARTMANN, D.D.
Secretary of Extension Department
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And he said unto him, what is thy name? And he said, Jacob. Genesis 28:12.

The Bible is an honest book; it does not hide anything when it tells the story of a man's life; and this very characteristic is one of the evidences of the divine origin and inspiration of the book; an uninspired man would have left out the dark pages and dark places.

Jacob was a wonderful character and God intended him for a great work, although to accomplish his purpose he had hard work with this one of the leaders of the Jewish race. To understand this character requires and invites profound study, and as a result we shall not be inclined to throw stones at him. How much he is like ourselves. His failings appeal to us and comfort us; his aspirations speak to us and cheer us in our own efforts; his sorrows bring comfort in our own times of bereavement and separation. If ever you are discouraged or downhearted, take courage. The God who wrought wonders in Jacob and in Simon Peter can do as much for you, if he can have his way with you.

The chapter in which the text is found is a great chapter in the life of this unusual man, and marks a crisis in his temporal career and in his spiritual experience; and the latter was of far more importance, for God was making this man a new head of the race which he had designated as his own. There are three important scenes in the chapter. Morning, when the angel wrestled him; afternoon, when he received news that Esau was coming to meet him and this news stirred him to fear and brought him to prayer; and night, when he was alone with God and there wrestled a man with him. In these scenes the temporal and spiritual life of Jacob begin anew, and two lessons stand out clearly: First, God demands spiritual men for spiritual work; second, surrender to God is the only but the necessary condition to this spiritual life. At the end of the struggle we read that God blessed him there.

The Touch.

"And when he saw that he prevailed not against him he touched the hollow of his thigh; and the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him." Just where Jacob considers himself the strongest, there God put his finger and brings his strength to naught; it is only when we are weak that we are really strong; it is just when God has put his finger on our place of resistance that the way is open for blessing, power and usefulness. It is a different place and a different experience with each one of us. God brings pain and sorrow, shame and confusion, or loss and grief, as the case may be. In a thousand different ways he seeks to make us like unto himself; but at the end he accomplishes his purposes and causes us to rejoice in him. His touch always takes away the power to wrestle, but not always the desire; but may it do that for you, and do it now.

The Question.

"What is thy name?" And he told the truth; let us give this wily man all credit for that. A few days ago he would have said it—and with pride—but now with confession and confusion: "And he said, Jacob." God asks you that question: I pray you, tell him the truth. You may hide your real name and character from men, but not from God. Be honest with him. It may bring shame, confusion, tears, but tell him that you thought you were so and so, but now at close grips with God you know you are only Jacob. "Vile and full of sin I am, thou art full of grace and truth." God's greatest difficulty is our own lack of honesty, want of fairness, and failure to give up everything except a claim on the righteousness of Jesus Christ.

The Result.

"And he said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob (Supplanter), but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed. . . . And he blessed him there. . . . And the sun rose upon him." Three gracious results followed this remarkable experience: A new name or character; a new power, and a new experience; no wonder Jacob called the name of the place Peniel, "For I have met God face to face."

And he blessed him there. May all these blessings be yours. God has made such promise to you. Rev. 2:17 and 3:12. Close with God ere you finish reading this sentence; the only way to those blessings is by the way of self-surrender. But when you take that step then God undertakes for you.

"Thou canst overcome this heart of mine. Thou wilt victorious prove. For everlasting strength is thine, And everlasting love."

More Happy Than Sad.

"At any given moment I will produce nine happy persons for every miserable one," said the bishop of London in an address at Queen's college for women recently.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

SALUTE THE COLORS.

At the Walter Reed hospital, outside the city of Washington, the troops were recently engaged in a ball game just before evening taps.

The game was probably exciting, for there are fans wherever there is baseball, even though it is played by scrubs. At the psychological moment, just after some one had knocked a fly to the outfield, the bugle sounded colors. Immediately every bat was dropped, every cap came off, and every man faced to the flag and saluted. Even the man who was fielding the fly dropped his glove, and the ball rebounded on the earth unheeded. This, you will agree, was a supreme test of patriotism, for there is no other one thing in the universe excepting sudden death that would cause a fielder to neglect a high one.

The incident illustrated something more than military training. It was typically American.

In times of peace we are intent on playing the game, whatever game it may be, whether baseball or business, politics or dollar chasing. Let the bugle call sound, however—the thrilling note indicating that the country is in danger—and every true American drops the game that instant and faces the flag. That has been the inspiring chronicle of every crisis from the Revolution to the Spanish war. We are a peaceful people so long as we are permitted to be peaceful, but when the nation's honor, the cause of liberty or the interests of humanity demand every peaceful implement is dropped and every hand comes to salute.

Not alone at the call of war is the national spirit needed. It is equally essential in the commonplace days, when nothing more exciting than the tariff or the currency question is before us.

We are working out on this continent the scheme of democracy for the whole world. It is a high task to which we have been called. Until we have the same feeling in approaching the most commonplace public questions that the soldiers on the ball field had when they dropped their bats to salute the colors we are not up to the mark to carry out this mission and to make of this nation one after the vision of a Washington or a Lincoln.

The most potent force in the world is an ideal. It is our mission to make Americanism the political ideal that will move the world.

Therefore, Be Ready.

Good comes to what is prepared for it.—Horace Fletcher.

NO MORE HORSECARS IN 'FRISCO; MAYOR DRIVES NAGS LAST TIME OVER ROUTE

Mayor Ralph driving last horsecar in San Francisco.

Wearing a conductor's cap and a broad grin, Mayor Ralph of San Francisco drove the last of that city's horsecars up Market street a few days ago. Thousands of happy 'Friscons witnessed the ceremony. As New York still has many miles of horsecar lines, the people of the western metropolis feel that they still in advance of the eastern city.

Great Advance During Century.

A century ago astronomers, geologists, chemists, physicists, each had an island of his own, separate and distinct from that of every other student of nature; the whole field of research was then an archipelago of unconnected units. Today all the standpoints of study have risen together to form a continent without either ferry or bridge.

Once Was Enough.

Little Sterling had been taken to church to be baptized, and being quite indignant about the water being put on his head he remarked while coming out: "Well, I'll never get married again."

Bearer of Great Name a Menial.

Sombody has discovered on the electoral roll of the city of Melbourne a gentleman named Oliver Cromwell, who by occupation is described as a "theater packer." The duty of the "packer" is to squeeze as many people as possible into the pit and gallery. There have been complaints in Melbourne lately about his ungentle methods and his unchivalrous handling of women.

Inexperienced Judge.

A St. Louis judge has decided that tipping a porter is a voluntary act. The judge evidently has not had much experience with porters.—Chicago Journal.

Making a Stove Look New.

An old stove can be made to look like new by, first of all, washing it with hot soap suds containing an alkali to cut the grease, etc. Mix with any good stove blacking a teaspoon of turpentine. Apply to stove, and when nearly dry polish in the usual way. The turpentine keeps the blacking from flying. Nickel-work on the stoves can be cleaned by applying wood ashes and vinegar mixed to a paste. Apply, and rub or dust. Zinc: Wash clean, then rub with cloth soaked with kerosene.

Even Worse Grievance.

"Your worship," said the prisoner, "you don't know how heartrending it is to have a wife who can cook but won't do it." "No," said his honor, and then added, feelingly: "Thank goodness, man, you haven't one that can't cook and will do it."
